

HOMEOWNER ASSOCIATION GUIDELINES

Initially Approved on March 22, 2022

(with subsequent amendments - last updated 3/13/25)

INTRODUCTION – Glenhaven is a small, compact residential community made even more so because of limited parking. By custom and law, individuals who choose to live in a planned community like Glenhaven make conscious choices about their living style; in turn, they relinquish responsibility for certain activities (e. g., landscaping) to the HOA Board. Homeowners also agree to abide by rules and regulations related to common areas, including the common areas that surround a resident’s home (often mistakenly referred to as “my front [or back] yard” by homeowners).

The Glenhaven Bylaws, the community’s Declaration of Covenants and Restrictions, as amended, our Design Guidelines, and the North Carolina Planned Community Act provide guidance to Glenhaven and benefit all homeowners. The following guidelines are drawn from our Bylaws and Declaration of Covenants and have two primary objectives: 1, to minimize and eliminate nuisances and inconveniences to homeowners ; and 2, to protect and enhance our community’s property values.

At a time when many feel civility is waning (e. g., absence of courtesy among drivers), it’s important that we conduct our governance responsibilities and our interactions with each other in a thoughtful manner, even when views on a subject may differ. Life in a planned community requires compromise. When conflicting views arise, it’s important that we strive to “disagree without being disagreeable.”

Differences of opinion between or among neighbors can occur in any community. When these situations involve interpersonal issues, we’re all better served if they can be rationally discussed among the affected parties. Often, a friendly discussion in which the concerns are brought to the attention of a neighbor can resolve the problem. An important point to keep in mind is that the HOA Board has no statutory authority to mediate personal issues that do not involve a violation of our governing documents or rules the community may create.

Especially for those who are new to a planned community, it's important to note that there are different, unique governing rules that contrast dramatically with life in a single-family home in an area with minimal zoning restrictions. Planned communities typically have well delineated rules and regulations that homeowners are expected to follow. If these rules are disregarded, a common compliance tool is the levying of a fine. (The specific Glenhaven rules and regulations are outlined in this document.)

Typically, a fine of $50.00 is levied for an infraction of the guidelines. If the violation is not remedied, the board may also levy a daily fine of $50.00 until corrective actions are taken. Homeowners also have the right of appeal when a fine is levied; details about the appeal procedure are outlined in any fine notification letter sent to the homeowner; they are also summarized at the end of this document. While unusual, the board may also seek "damages" if, for example, the HOA must resort to removing a structural or other incursion on a common area. The provisions outlined in this paragraph are consistent with North Carolina's Planned Community Act.

Violations of the community's rules and regulations that may result in the board's notifying a homeowner of a violation are identified in one of two ways: 1, a homeowner may forward a concern about a guideline infringement by sending an e-mail, preferably with supporting documentation (e. g., pictures with a time/date stamp) and detail to the Lambeth Relationship Manager, Ms. Michele Grimm – michele@imgmt@gmail.com, 336.884.0750. Of course, homeowners should avoid invasive actions and confrontations with any individual. The board will review the situation and address the issue, as appropriate, with the homeowner who has reportedly violated the Glenhaven Guidelines; 2, as a result of the Architectural Control Committee's (ACC) annual "walk around" that focuses on any issues that are inconsistent with the guidelines herein or the community's Design Guidelines that were extensively updated in 2024. The procedure for notifying homeowners of issues identified in an ACC "walk around" is analogous to the one outlined in #1.

Potential financial penalties are not intended to be a source of revenue. Rather, experience at other communities in our area and beyond has shown that for guidelines to be effective, there must be a financial penalty available to the community when there are unacceptable actions that are consistent, repetitive, or go uncorrected.

The following guidelines and prohibitions are not intended to be inclusive. It's impossible to anticipate every situation that could lead to difficult or untenable situations in our community. As appropriate and warranted, the list may be expanded and/or amended, at the board's sole discretion.

Violations of the following actions/activities may result in fines being levied against the homeowner (with the noted procedures for appeals):

MAINTENANCE OF EASEMENT AREA: plants, shrubs, etc., planted by the owner in the appropriate easement area must be properly maintained by the homeowner. (There are some "grand fathered" exceptions for Phase I homes.) Homeowners must remove dead plants or shrubbery, discarded flowerpots, etc. Homeowners should also ensure that items like garden hoses, rakes, etc., are not left in a cluttered fashion in the easement or in a common area in any way that would impede landscaping activity. Hoses fit nicely on a reel; tools can be stored in the garage or discreetly behind a bush or shrub.

HOMEOWNERS' INTERACTIONS WITH CONTRACTORS – One of the frustrations expressed by prior contractors was the frequency (and on occasion the lack of civility) with which individual homeowners would interrupt their routines with questions, concerns, requests or issues that interfere with the contractor's ability to finish the assigned duties within the allocated time. Any question or concern about landscaping should be directed only to a board member or to the Lambeth relationship manager; the issue will be assessed and discussed, as appropriate, with the contractor at the appropriate time. It's much easier (and more effective) for our landscaping contractor to interact with one person rather than (potentially) 72. Feedback will be a routine component in the board's relationship with the landscaping contractor.

EXCESSIVE NOISE – No speakers or any other sound devices (except security apparatus) can be permanently placed on townhome exteriors or anywhere outdoors. If speakers or any audio equipment are placed on the rear patio, the radio or music should not be heard by neighbors. Any noise from tv's, stereos, radios, musical instruments (not an inclusive list) that permeates the interior common wall of units will also be considered a violation of this policy. Radios and stereos in cars using Glenhaven streets must be maintained at a sound level so that they're not heard by residents. Continually barking dogs will be considered a noise nuisance.

While excessive noise is a violation of the community's governing documents, the Lambeth relationship manager and the board are not in a position to adjudicate these situations. A homeowner should contact the Sheriff's Department for assistance in resolution.

FIREARMS/FIRECRACKERS – Neither item is to be discharged in any common area of Glenhaven.

PROHIBITED ACTIVITIES – No noxious or offensive activity shall be conducted in any Townhome. Owners and guests shall refrain from any activity that could reasonably cause embarrassment, discomfort, annoyance, or a nuisance to other residents.

EXTERIOR ORNAMENTS, EXTERIOR LIGHTING, AND SEASONAL DECORATIONS - Nothing should be placed on outside ledges or windows or hung or attached to lighting fixtures, gutters, or outdoor fencing. There is to be no additional exterior lighting other than the permanent light fixtures, except for small decorative accent or "luminary" or solar type lighting. This requirement is NOT applicable to seasonal year-end lights and window decorations that may be temporarily installed. Seasonal decorations should be removed in a timely manner.

In most cases, discussions about "seasonal decorations" relate to the year-end holiday fortnight. Other holidays (e. g., Thanksgiving and even Halloween) have associated decorative themes. In the case of Halloween, associated decorations should be displayed no sooner than the beginning of October and must be removed during the first week of November. A trend has developed that involves, for example, a continuous display of a large skeletal figure and changing the skeleton's attire to meet other holiday themes (e. g., "back to school," fall, winter, patriotic holiday). This is not permitted under the Glenhaven guidelines.

The board realizes that views about the appropriateness and tastefulness of external decorations vary and are subjective. The community's philosophy is to be flexible; however, the board reserves the right to make the final decision regarding the appropriateness of decorations and the length of time they're exhibited.

ADDITIONS TO PORCHES OR PORTICOS -Porches and porticos are for the use and enjoyment of the homeowner(s) in the townhome attached to the portico or porch, and there is no requirement for approval by the Architectural Control Committee (ACC) for the usual array of furniture and decorations typically employed: a wreath or door decoration, exterior wall art, a decorative pot with plant, a bench or comparable decorative items leading to the front door.

Homeowners should exercise common sense about the number and size of items placed in entrance ways and porches. As referenced previously, seasonal year-end holiday decorations may also be placed on porches and porticos but should be removed in a timely manner.

TRASH AND RECYCLING CONTAINERS - Most consider these containers to be unsightly, and over time, their appearance often declines significantly. The cans are not to be placed on the driveway until the night before scheduled pick-up and should be returned to storage by the evening of pick-up day. All cans are to be stored in the owner's garage or fenced-in patio area. At no time can a container be stored in any common area or easement, even if placed behind a large shrub; moving the can(s) to an area just outside (adjacent to) the garage door is not allowed for storage of the refuse receptacles.

SIGNS – When a property is “for sale,” one “sale” sign may be placed in the front common area; on the day(s) of an open house, a relevant sign may be installed but must be removed afterward. A small security system sign in front, near the pine needle area is allowed, and one window security decal. A similar sign and decal may be placed in the rear. If a home is being rented, no “for rent” signs can be displayed at any time.

No other signs of any kind are allowed in any common area. (Political/advocacy signs are addressed in the next section.) The opening sentence is inclusive and explicit; however, to avoid any ambiguity, misunderstanding, or misinterpretation, this paragraph specifically prohibits any garage/yard sale signs anywhere in Glenhaven common areas. The board, in its sole discretion, determines placement of any community yard sale signs.

POLITICAL/ADVOCACY (“issues”) SIGNS – On March 22, 2022, Glenhaven Homeowners overwhelmingly approved an Amendment to its Declaration of Covenants and Restrictions to prohibit any political/advocacy signs in Glenhaven at any time. The consistent views expressed by homeowners are that such signs create significant visual clutter, can be divisive within our community, and can also create problems for routine landscaping maintenance. The restriction on these signs applies to all common areas as well as the exterior of a home or any window, as well as porches or porticos. A political or advocacy sign within a garage is impermissible if it is visible from the street when the garage door is open for an extended period of time.

The scope of the restriction on “political/advocacy signs” is comprehensive in its application and allows broad interpretation by the board. This restriction covers not only traditional placard signs seen along a highway or street, mounted on a stanchion or tree; it also covers political/advocacy “garden flags,” and flags of any size with or without a flag mast. (Nothing in this section should be interpreted as limiting or restricting – not an inclusive list - seasonal, sports, or college garden and mast-mounted flags.)

These restrictions also preclude the placement of any text, iconic figures, caricatures, memes, or cartoon-like figures with the intent of supporting (or demeaning) a particular candidate or a particular position on a referendum or amendment, as well as an advocacy (or denigration) related to societal issues. The board is the final arbiter on any issues related to the topic of political/advocacy signs.

Once the board becomes aware of the placement of unacceptable messaging, a note will be sent to the homeowner requesting the immediate removal of the unapproved item; this note will also contain notification of the board's intent to initiate the fine procedure for the infraction. The proposed fine would be $50.00 and would continue at $50.00 per day as long as the infraction continues. The board reserves the right to remove (and subsequently return) the item to the homeowner, with or without the homeowner's acknowledgement of the note from the board and/or the homeowner's concurrence.

If there is uncertainty about the acceptability/appropriateness of an item being considered for placement, the homeowner should review the item with the Lambeth Relationship Manager or a board member before moving forward.

DISPLAY OF FLAGS – The US, NC, seasonal (garden), college or sports team flags are allowed to be displayed from homeowners' residences (maximum of 4' x 6'); owners may rotate them as they elect. No advocacy, "issues," or political flags (with or without a flag mast) are permitted. (See "Political Advocacy" section just above.) Our homes' facades limit the acceptable areas for house display. Owners should avoid the garage area, particularly the area closest to a neighbor's home. An optimum placement position is the home's entrance area or beside the large front window. Smaller garden flags may be displayed near the owner's mailbox, in the easement area, amidst pine needles or behind the home. Advocacy or “issues” flags are not allowed in these areas. (The board is the final arbiter on these issues.) No corrugated flags or flag poles are allowed in Glenhaven.

PETS – Dogs must always be on a leash when walking in the neighborhood and owners may not allow a pet to be outdoors unsupervised. No portion of the common areas can be used to tie-up dogs. Owners (and guests) should bag and remove pet waste and dispose of it at the owner’s home; pet owners should also be mindful of the common areas in the front and back (the “yards”) of homes and easement areas. This issue can also affect our landscaping efforts when mowers pick up and spread material. Pets add richly to our quality of life and it’s readily apparent that pets are often a significant part of informal, outdoor social gatherings among residents.

PARKING – In addition to the two vehicular spaces in each homeowner’s garage, two additional spaces on the driveway are assigned to each homeowner. NC State Department of Transportation (DOT) regulations preclude street parking in Glenhaven; vehicles in violation of these regulations may receive a “warning” or a citation from the Davidson County Sheriff’s Department. In some cases, a vehicle may be towed. There is an informal agreement with the Sheriff’s Department that “event parking” (e. g., holiday gatherings, club meetings, dinner parties) will be accommodated, within reason. Parking with two wheels on the pavement and two on a “front yard” common area violates DOT statutes as well as Glenhaven covenants. Home cleaning services, repair vendors, and caretaker vehicles should use the homeowner’s driveway. During mail delivery days, no vehicle may interfere with the Postal Service carrier’s access to a homeowner’s mailbox. Street parking can also restrict access and egress to driveways of neighbors and can make it more difficult, even if only incrementally, for emergency vehicles to reach their destinations. As part of its normal duties, the Davidson County Sheriff's Department will periodically patrol our streets. Residents who experience chronic inconvenience with a car (or cars) parked on one of our streets should contact the Sheriff's Department (not through the 911 system). The Corporal responsible for community relations is the contact point for Glenhaven parking issues. His cell number is: 336.590.4568. The Sheriff's Department will respond.

SPEED LIMITS ON COMMUNITY STREETS – NC Department of Transportation Statutes limit Glenhaven's ability to install speed bumps and/or lower community speed limits. Drivers on our roads are asked to be considerate of residents and observe a maximum speed of 15 miles per hour.

TRAILERS, BOATS, COMMERCIAL VEHICLES – No boat, boat trailer, trailer of any kind, camper or utility trailer shall be stored or repaired anywhere on Association property. The parking of commercial vehicles of any kind is discouraged. If circumstances dictate that a commercial vehicle be brought to one's residence, it should be stored in the homeowner's garage or alternatively, on the homeowner's driveway. In no circumstance can a vehicle of any kind be parked in a common area. Nothing in this section, however, is intended to preclude a commercial vendor (HVAC, plumber, electrician, appliance repair, etc.) from parking in the homeowner's driveway or briefly on the street should vehicle size present a challenge. (It should be noted that any oversized vehicle parked on the street is still in violation of DOT regs.) Sensitivity should be demonstrated in regard to interfering with mail delivery.

ANTENNAS, AERIALS, AND SATELLITE DISHES – No reception device larger than one meter (c. 39 inches) shall be installed on any townhome. Unless reception is seriously compromised, any reception device should be mounted on that part of the townhome that is least visible from public view and in no circumstance can it create a nuisance (e. g., with landscaping activity).

WINDOW AIR CONDITIONERS – No “window” a/c unit may be installed in any window of any home.

PROHIBITED ITEMS – Basketball goals/practice areas, permanent, inflatable or portable pools (not behind an opaque barrier wall of standard design), clotheslines, playhouses, storage sheds on a common area not behind an opaque wall and thus not visible.

USE OF COMMON AREAS – Residents accessing common areas should be respectful of nearby homeowners and their townhomes and maintain a proper distance and minimize noise. (All pet control issues are applicable to rear common areas.) Especially since the pandemic, some homeowners may be working from a home office, which may be in the front or in the rear sunroom. This calls for even greater sensitivity to the use of common areas.

INTERACTION WITH ARCHITECTURAL CONTROL COMMITTEE (ACC) – Nothing in this section supplants the need for a homeowner to secure the approval from the Glenhaven Architectural Control Committee for certain alterations to one’s townhome as articulated in the governing documents referenced previously. If there are questions about the need for the ACC to review and approve the planned activity, please contact a member of the committee or a board member. If you are uncertain about the applicability of the Architectural Control Committee in relation to a planned rework or modification of any area of your home, be sure to inquire. Initially determining the appropriate involvement of the ACC is a relatively simple process; it’s better to be “safe than sorry.”

INAPPROPRIATE BEHAVIOR BY A GLENHAVEN CONTRACTOR – With few structural amenities (e. g., clubhouse, pool), Glenhaven’s Homeowners’ Association has no full, part-time or seasonal workers. Its landscaping, weed control, tree maintenance services (and any others that might be engaged) are contracted on a “per-service” basis. These vendors are not Association employees. However, should a resident experience any inappropriate or discriminatory behavior from any vendor, this should be reported immediately to the Lambeth Relationship Manager. The date, time, and specifics of such an incident should be part of this report. The Lambeth contact will review the situation with the board; issues will be dealt with promptly and appropriately.

(The following paragraph regarding yard/garage sales is an amendment that was adopted by unanimous vote of the Glenhaven Board on Monday, June 13, 2022.)

YARD/GARAGE SALES

One of the unique challenges Glenhaven faces is limited parking and no designated “guest parking.” Consequently, any yard/garage sale (small or large) can create significant dislocation and inconvenience for residents. Homeowners have differing views about the desirability of yard sales; however, there appears to be near unanimity on one point: if Glenhaven engages in a yard/garage sale, it should be a community-wide event, held on a mutually identified date, and held annually. With advance notice of such an event, the community would have time to plan for critical logistics. Given the complications these events present, in no event can a resident, or a group of residents, conduct an “independent” yard/garage sale. Because of the broad impacts of these events, any yard/garage sale must be approved by the board. A sale of this type held without board approval will result in the levying of a fine (or fines), and in the event of a homeowner's refusal to comply, the board will pursue legal options.

The rules outlined above are "common sense" directives to ensure that our community can exist and function in a harmonious manner. They're also intended to protect and enhance each homeowner's property value. Most planned communities have a reputation (good or bad) with realtors and prospective buyers. We certainly want Glenhaven to be in the "good" category.

(Note: The use of "homeowner" in this document is also synonymous with any and all residents who may be renting a home within Glenhaven. The guidelines also apply to guests of property owners. The owners of a property are responsible for the payment of any fines that may be levied against them as a result of a renter's or guest's violation of these guidelines.)

EXCERPT FROM THE NC PLANNED COMMUNITY ACT

47F-3-107.1 Procedures for fines and suspension of planned privileges or services

“ . . . a hearing must be held before the executive board or an adjudicatory panel appointed by the executive board to determine if any lot owner should be fined or if planned community privileges or services should be suspended. The lot owner that is charged must be given notice of the charge, an opportunity to be heard and to present evidence, and notice of the decision.

“ . . . any adjudicatory panel appointed by the executive board must be composed of members of the association who are not officers of the association or members of the executive board. The lot owner may appeal the decision of an adjudicatory panel to the full executive board by delivering written notice of appeal to the executive board within 15 days after the date of the decision. The executive board may affirm, vacate, or modify the prior decision of the adjudicative body.

“ . . . the fine that could be imposed was reduced from a maximum of $150.00 for each day after the decision that the violation occurs to a maximum of $100.00 for each day more than five days after the decision that the violation occurs.”

(Note: the legislation uses the term “lot owner.” More informal Glenhaven communications refer to “homeowners.” The Glenhaven fine is set at a maximum of $50.00 per day rather than $100.00 allowed by the Planned Community Act.)
